dience, ex-Judge Noah Davis delivered a carefully prepared address on the reasons why he should devote the remaining years of his life to the cause of woman suffrage. He began by saying that the keystone of the arch was "No taxation without representation." It was in 177 that the word "male" was first inserted in the fundamental law of the Commonwealth. It was perfectly natural them, when American laws were derived from the common law of England, under which the man owned allewide, children and property. This condition of womanhood was the common heritage of all the colonies. There was little advance in the elevation of woman by the constitutions of NSI and 1848.

"But over forty years ago," continued Judge Davis, "when I first went on the bench in the Western Circuit, the position of woman toward property was completely revolutionized by according to women independent property rights. Step by step this radical innovation was bitterly contested by the opposition, and I well remember that the old judges of that period very reluctantly accepted the new order of things. The first test case was tried before me while sitting in Lockport forty years ago."

Judge Davis went on to say that women held one-bird of the property in this State, but were not represented in the halls of legislation or in other branches of the Government to the extent of a single voice or a single dollar. The basic principle of the American revolution as far as women were concerned was thus a like-a palpable lie. It was contended that if suffrage was conferred on women they would become office-seekers at once, and that they were not fitted to exercise these public and masculine functions. The answer to this he would give from personal experience. Women were permitted by law to vote for and to become school trustees. In his own summer home, Tarrytown Heights, the School Board was composed entirely of men, who quarreiled and fought. The women speedily chose three of their number at the next election, who was at once raised, the attendance of equ

GOOD WORK DONE BY WOMEN.

It was so, he found on careful inquiry, all over the State where women were installed. It was said that women did not want the ballet. Then why should the opposition be afraid to give it to her It was well to have a loaded gun in the house, even if one did not fire it off at every alarm. To give woman the ballot was simply to increase the reserve force of the Nation. Was it not a ply that the flower of womanhood should not now occupy the executive mansion at Albany instead of the blooming Flower that would wilt in November, wither in January. (Applause.)

A MOST IMPORTANT QUESTION. Question as the most important that had come be-fere the people in the last fifty years. Should woman suffrage fall at this Constitutional Convenwoman suffrage fall at this Constitutional Convention, should the simple word of four letters, "male,"
be not stricken from the fundamental law this year, the movement would have to be postponed for twenty years, according to the terms of that inframent itself. What might not happen in the linerim? God only knew! With great bedies of malcontents gathering at the capital of the Nation,
with questions of capital and labor darkening the borizon, with violence here and there, with the teady inroad of ignorance and anarchy, with the limitgrant made a citizen by the peculiar operation of the courts after he had been six months on these saces, instead of five years, the outlook called for sounterbalancing political force.

Sugge Davis was frequently applauded and recivel much congratulation at the close of his stress. He told a Tribune reporter that the late Meigon J. Waterbury had pledged himself as a cligate to vote and work for woman suffrage in the Constitutional Convention.

REMINDERS COMING THE OTHER WAY

From The Utica Herald.

As fast as the opportunity is offered the people are "impressively reminding" Mr. Cleveland and the other tariff smashers that popular "trust" is totally withdrawn from them; that, in fact, it was obtained under false pretences and will be canceled in every particular as fast as leases expire.

Did Mr. Cleveland become aware of the "enforcement" of the truth he so admiringly recognizes in the earlier days of his Administration, when the ceaseless buzzing of office-seekers confused his brain and forced his temporary retirement from the duties of his office?

LEASE FOR THAT TRACK.

Many reports have been circulated of late in regard to Jerome Park. The old "saddlebags" track, as it was called, is likely to be the scene of some stirring racing in the coming season Michael F. Dwyer thoroughly inspected the tracks, stables and grandstand ten days ago, and formed an estimate of what it would cost to place all in condition for racing. He held a conultation with W. A. Duer in regard to leasing the property.

Mr. Duer asked $30,000 a year for the lease The estimate for placing the track in first-class condition for racing was $35,000, so that it seemed impossible that an agreement should be reached.

the passage of a modified racing bill in New-Jersey. If this effort fails the Monmouth Park stakes will be decided at Jerome Park. The reports about Huntington and other tracks on Long Island are revived with alarming frequency. W. J. Thompson is said to be at the head of the synli-ate which is to Gloucesterize this State. It is a well-known fact that Mr. Thompson has a map that is thickly dotted with Thompson has a map that is thickly dotted with racetrack sites from Brooklyn to Montauk Point. There are also a large number of persons who say that there is plenty of room for two grades of racing, and that money can be made by opposition racetracks to those controlled by the Jockey Club. The lessons of New-Jersey and Washington are lost on a certain element who infest the turf, and who are anxious to destroy a great sport to further their own ends. High-class racing at Jersene Park is likely to do much to thwart the plans of the opponents of all that thwart the plans of the opponents of all that General regret will be felt among racing that Marcus Daly has withdrawn his fine colt Senator Grady from the Suburban. Keen is the crusity of all turfmen to see a three-year-old colt of the highest class run against older horses in the Suburban. Domino, with 129 pounds up, the same weight which was assigned to Senator Grady, has not been withdrawn, but it is hardly probable that he will start, as he is engaged in all the richest stakes for three-year-olds, and Mr. Keene will not be inclined to run the risk of break-ing him down by excessively severe tasks, es-pecially by running him against older horses. But with only nine occlarations, the Suburban is sure to have a handsome and high-class list of starters, and a memorable contest will result.

This would also clear the circle of all unnecessary tracks—a great advantage in itself. I wish you may think this of enough importance to print in The Tribune.
